Hello, I am a Curandera who was trained as an acudetox specialist. I had to stop doing the weekly clinics, in spite of the good acudetox does, because I left the non-profit I had a space with and couldn't find a supervisor and a new clinic space that would work for me. So, now I just use seeds on the points for my clients in individual sessions. I live in the city and have had difficulty; I can only imagine what other CADS go through in rural areas trying to find supervisors. Residents in rural areas struggle to find good medical care and mental health resources as it is. Acudetox should be more accessible to them to help cope with the unique issues of rural life.

Thank you,

Denise Griego de Angel/Itzhotli Cihuatl
